NBAA LAUNCHES NEW AIR MAIL LIST FOR LOCAL GROUPS NATIONWIDE:

Today, about 40 local aviation groups throughout the nation focus on supporting business aviation at their airports and in their communities. Each has its own primary interest and structure, but all work to improve airport community relations, support aviation education and local charities, and find solutions for local issues. Many local organizations have asked NBAA about best practices and have expressed an interest in sharing their successes with others. NBAA Air Mail, the Association's series of e-mail discussion lists, permits such collaboration. The new Local Business Aviation Organizations Air Mail list will allow NBAA Members to exchange information, inquire about local organizations and discuss best practices and local issues. For more information on the new list and NBAA's Local Business Aviation Organization Committee, contact NBAA's Dan Burkhardt at dburkhart@nbaa.org or visit <http://web.nbaa.org/public/about/committees/local/>.
